DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 5/17/05 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

4. Claims 21-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Troller (Sanitation in Food Processing) in view of Lange (Detergents and Cleaners. A Handbook for Formulators).

Troller teaches that Clean-in-Place (CIP) systems are conventionally used in dairy operations and shows a conventional sequence of a CIP cleaning. See pages 44-51.

Troller teaches that the conventional CIP operation comprises the claimed steps of flushing and washing.

Thus, Troller teaches the claimed method except for specific recitation of the use of the specifically claimed neutralized anionic polymers as surfactants.

Lange in his Handbook evidences that such surfactants were conventional in CIP formulations for food processing industry. Lange further provides a discussion regarding properties of the referenced polymers. See pages 124-132.

Having the teachings of these two cited handbooks it would have been obvious to an ordinary artisan at the time the invention was made that the surfactant polymers, as claimed were conventionally used in the conventional CIP operations in dairy industry, thereby it would have been obvious that conventional CIP process utilizing surfactants recited by Lange meets the limitations of the claimed method.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 21-27 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

The applicants have amended the claims to direct them to clean-in-place method for dairy industry.

Two handbooks were cited in the rejection above to show that the pending claims recite conventional application of the surfactants conventional for CIP formulations.
